

Monday 1 June Day 63/64 of the garden journal

01/06/2020

On offer today: two peonies,...

Vivien Ford

01/06/2020

...

Vivien Ford

01/06/2020

...a shy rhododendron...

Vivien Ford

01/06/2020

...and the first day lily.

Vivien Ford

01/06/2020

Lupine. Birds and insects are loving these.

Brenda Kirkham

01/06/2020

Stipa gigantea catching the last rays of the evening sun. Looking roughly in the direction of Comet Swan, which was supposed to appear after sunset but there was too much garden in the way.

Ian Andrews

01/06/2020

A small red butterfly with wings closed resting in the corkscrew hazel. It's much redder when the wings are open and it's sunbathing. Don't know its proper name but no doubt Alan will. Perhaps, prosaically, it's called a small red?

Ian Andrews