

Tuesday 23 June Day 86 of the garden journal

23/06/2020

I enjoyed Alan's pictures yesterday. Nothing so gorgeous here.
Tale of two Jacob's ladders, one white against a day lily, ...

Vivien Ford

23/06/2020

...one blue, about 15 inches apart. Rabbits played their part, of course. (The seedlings are Verbena bonariensis, which I'll leave for now).

Vivien Ford

23/06/2020

We were just sitting down to lunch outside when several thousand bees decided to raid the old bee nest in our roof for the remaining honey. Don't know where they have gone, but there's an ominous buzzing up there. Hope they are not planning on setting up home again.

Ian Andrews